

A Day of Conventions.

Parties in Several States Name Tickets.

PREPARED FOR THE CAMPAIGN.

Some of the Conventions Were Very Enthusiastic on Account of the Close Vote, While Others Were Too One-Sided to Create Very Much of a Stir.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 29.—The Democratic state convention was called to order at 10:20 yesterday by Chairman Jewett, of the state central committee. A permanent organization was effected by the election of ex-Governor Isaac P. Gray as chairman, and John C. Nelson as secretary.

Thirteen hundred and three delegates occupied seats on the floor, while the lobby and galleries were filled with a large crowd of Democrats. The platform, which is very long, was received with great enthusiasm.

A resolution was adopted to make the state central committee a permanent body, elected every two years on St. Jackson's day (Jan. 8).

The first ballot for secretary of state resulted: Matthews, 883; Clark 132-1-2; Hillegoss, 337; Lee, 218-1-2; McLain, 12. Before the second ballot Clark and McLain were withdrawn.

On the second ballot Claude Matthews received 839 votes, and on motion of his chief opponent the nomination was made unanimous.

On the first ballot J. O. Henderson, editor of The Kokomo Dispatch, received 675 votes, and was declared the nominee for state auditor.

For state treasurer Albert Gall, of Indianapolis was nominated.

Michigan Republicans.—The state Republican convention opened here yesterday. A full state ticket was placed in nomination. Charles M. Turner, of Lansing, was nominated for governor on the first ballot, which stood as follows: Turner, 49; Rich, 44; T. W. Palmer, 1.

The result was received with frantic applause by Turner's supporters, and as he had twenty-six votes more than a majority, the nomination was made unanimous.

The ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant governor, Linton, of Saginaw; secretary of state, Washington Gardner, of Battle Creek; state treasurer, Joseph B. Moore, of Detroit; auditor general, T. F. Gidding, of superintendant of public instruction, Professor Schurtz, of justice of the supreme court, Edward Capell, of Lansing; state board education, Joseph M. Ballow, of Allegan county.

Senator James McMillan was unanimously chosen for chairman of the state central committee and the convention adjourned.

Wisconsin Democrats Finish Their Ticket.—The Democratic state convention re-assembled shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday, and after nominating the balance of the state ticket, adjourned. The following is the balance of the ticket: Secretary of state, Thomas J. Cunningham, of Chippewa Falls; state treasurer, John Hanger, of Eau Claire; attorney general, James E. O'Connor, of Madison; state superintendent, O. E. Wells, of Appleton; railroad commissioner, Thomas Thompson, of Trempealeau; insurance commissioner, W. M. Root, of Sheboygan.

Nebraska Prohibitionists.—The Prohibitionists of this state yesterday put the following ticket for state officers in the field: Dr. F. Payne, of Lincoln, was nominated for governor by acclamation; George W. Woodley, a colored man, was unanimously chosen for lieutenant governor; Charles Watts, for secretary of state; A. Fitch, Jr., for auditor; H. W. Hardy, for state treasurer; Judge F. P. Wigton, for attorney general; C. Olson, for commissioner, and Mrs. Mary R. Morgan, for state superintendent of schools.

South Dakota Republicans.—The Republican state convention re-assembled here. The committee on resolutions reported, and there was a small row over the prohibition plank, but it was finally adopted, which forces the party to a strict enforcement of the prohibition law now in force. The convention then renominated Governor Mellette and Congressman Pickler, and substituted John Gamble, of Yankton, for Congressman Gifford.

Congressman Cannon Renominated.—DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 29.—Hon. Joseph G. Cannon was renominated by the Republican congressional convention of the Fifteenth Illinois district here yesterday. Col. Bussey has already been placed in the field by the Democrats, while Col. Jesse Harper is the nominee of the industrial convention.

A Night Nomination.—CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 29.—At the Democratic convention at Asheville last night W. T. Crawford, of Haywood county, was nominated for congress, defeating R. B. Vance, brother of the senator, Alliance candidate.

Virginia's Sixth District.—ROANOKE, Va., Aug. 29.—Representative Paul C. Edwards was renominated by the Sixth Democratic district convention yesterday.

A DOUBLE HANGING.

Brooklyn Smith and Otto Leuth Executed at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 29.—Otto Leuth, the Cleveland murderer, and Brooklyn Smith, late of Cincinnati, were hanged this morning. Both wanted the job done quick and evidently got satisfaction. Leuth ascended the gallows at midnight, dropped at 12:05, and was cut down at 12:22. Smith was brought out at once and dropped at 12:25. At 1:45 he was cut down and the crowd dispersed, while the undertaker took charge of the bodies.

OTTO LEUTH.
At 1:45 he was cut down and the crowd dispersed, while the undertaker took charge of the bodies.

"BROCKY" SMITH.

Both bore themselves with great courage during the entire evening and showed great nerve. Even Leuth, aged 17, was game to the last. Death warrants were read at 11 p. m., and all they asked was to do up the job quick. When the spiritual advisers took leave Leuth made a statement giving a history of his case, admitting the crime and denying that the object was lust. He also left a will disposing of his small effects.

On the gallows Leuth had only to say that he forgave all his enemies, and urged the officials to be quick with the work. He died in seventeen minutes without a struggle.

Smith, charged with his crime, also expressed regrets for the same, forgave all, returned thanks to the warden and his family and at 12:40 was dead. It was a good job all around.

Young Leuth's Crime.—Leuth's crime was the most heinous in the history of Ohio criminals. May 9, 1889, he enticed poor little Maggie Thompson, aged 8, into the third story of a tenement house, at Cleveland, from her gateway, by showing her buttons and a gold watch, and promising to accompany him.

He attempted to ravish her, but she resisted with screams. He then picked up an old shoemaker hammer and crushed her skull in several brutal blows. He dragged the clothing from her bleeding form and then accomplished his purpose. He then carried the body to the cellar, where it was not found until June 8. Leuth was 17 years old, but was a hardened criminal.

"Brocky" Smith's Crime.—In Cincinnati, on the night of Dec. 9, 1889, Mrs. Bridget Byron, an old widow, who kept the wolf from the door by selling vegetables in market, was murdered by "Brocky" Smith on Butler street, near Fifth. He entered her room and beat and cut her until the blood gushed from wounds in the head and neck, and with bloody hands and arms she presented a sickening sight. She died after uttering, "Johnny Smith did this."

When Smith was arrested a bloody shirt was found, and the evidence against him was conclusive. "Brocky" was a dissipated street bum, and his motive was to rob Mrs. Byron of her earnings when she rested in quiet slumber without protection from anybody, alone and asleep.

Sons of Veterans.—Leland J. Webb, of Topeka, Kan., Elected Commander-in-Chief.

St. JOSEPH, Aug. 29.—Leland J. Webb, of Topeka, Kan., was yesterday afternoon elected commander-in-chief of the Sons of Veterans.

The appeal of ex-Commander-in-chief Walter S. Payne, of Ohio, from the findings of the court martial were treated very indifferently when brought before the encampment as the delegates refused to take any action on it.

In the afternoon Payne employed an attorney and sent him to ask United States Judge Phillips to issue a mandamus to show cause why he should not be granted a trial by his peers.

The committee reckoned up the parts by the competing companies in the prize drill. Their report gives St. Paul 98 per cent., Decatur 91, and Springfield 84. The prizes are $500, $300 and $200.

Last night a ball and reception was tendered the members of the Ladies Aid society, who are attending the encampment.

Freight Train Wrecked.—BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Aug. 29.—An incoming freight on the Lake Erie and Western railroad at 4 o'clock this morning got beyond control and crashed into an engine in the yards. Engineer Amos Middleton, of this city, was scalded to death, and both engines badly damaged.

An Embarrassed Firm.—BUFFALO, Aug. 29.—It is reported that the big lumber firm of E. & B. Holmes is in financial difficulties. The bank of Buffalo has filed for record a deed and mortgage given it as security by the firm in 1887. It is feared that an assignment may follow.

Arbitration Ordered.

The New York State Board Takes Up the Strike.

PROSPECTS OF A SETTLEMENT.

Master Workman Lee Says That He Can Prove That the Strike Was a Just One and Blames the Arbitration Board for Not Acting Sooner.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 29.—At the meeting of the state board of arbitration yesterday, the following motion was ordered served upon Vice President Webb and Master Workman Lee:

Resolved, That, in the judgment of this board, it is best to inquire into the cause or causes of the controversy growing out of differences between the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company and certain of its employees, who, on and since the 8th instant, have gone on a strike, and that such inquiry be commenced in the city of New York on Tuesday next, at 10 a. m., at such place as may hereafter be designated.

Master Workman Lee was shown the resolution of the board of arbitration, he said: "It is just what we wanted in the first place, and the only reprehensible thing about it is the delay over the matter. The board has waited for three weeks when it should have acted at once. I shall appear myself before the board, both as a witness and as head of the workers. I shall ask for subpoena for every discharged man and for every division superintendent where these men were discharged. I am sure we will be able to establish before the board the fact that the men discharged were not dismissed for drunkenness or any other vice, but because they were Knights of Labor. The board will find it pretty hard to prove otherwise."

The strike here furnishes no news of any kind and the road claims that extra men are working for them. The men claim that the road is doing no freight business of any kind and that the situation does not improve.

Trouble at Buffalo.—BUFFALO, Aug. 29.—The strikers are becoming violent here. Trouble is reported in the Second police precinct, which covers the Central tracks from Michigan to Elmlee streets. Several non-union switchmen have been stoned, and the railroad hospital and the palace found some cartridges and thrust them into a bonfire to hear them explode. The cartridges proved more powerful than the boys expected. A frightful series of explosions occurred, and seven of the boys were so badly injured by the flying fragments that they died soon after.

Increasing His Punishment.—LONDON, Aug. 29.—A St. Petersburg dispatch says that Kalulekoff, the Russian, who was among the conspirators convicted at Fautzka trial, and now undergoing a long term of imprisonment, is to be surrendered by Bulgaria on the demand of Russia. He will then probably be sent to Liberia, it having been discovered that he was formerly an architect. It will be a case of "from the frying pan into the fire."

Socialist Conspiracy.—LONDON, Aug. 29.—A dispatch received from Rome states that a big Socialist conspiracy has been unearthed in that city. Concealed in the houses of workmen belonging to secret societies, the police have found bombs charged with powder and dynamite as well as correspondence of a dangerous character with foreign Socialists and republican agitators intended to be used in case of an outbreak.

Heavy Reduction.—PARIS, Aug. 29.—A cablegram received here from Buenos Ayres says that a delegation, which waited upon the minister of finance were assured by that official that the government would make a reduction in the expenditures in the state of $12,000,000.

Storm Raging in Russia.—St. PETERSBURG, Aug. 29.—A terrific storm is raging. The rivers and canals are flooded and the water is two feet deep in the lower streets of the city. Guns are being fired from the fortresses to warn the inhabitants of danger.

Explosion on a War Vessel.—CROSTADT, Aug. 29.—By the explosion of a compressed air reservoir on the Russian war vessel Pamiaty Azova yesterday a sentry was killed, and the deck considerably torn up.

A Big Strike Increasing.—MONS, Belgium, Aug. 29.—In the Borinage district to-day not less than 16,000 coal miners are out on strike. The movement gains strength day by day.

Big Brewery Deal.—CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—The Journal this evening says: Another big brewery deal is in progress. The London Investment company, of London, England, has purchased the following breweries: Randolph Brand Brewing company, Bartholomae & Light & Ernest Brothers, all known as the United States Brewing company, and the K. G. Schmidt Brewing company, Wests Brewing company, and Bartholomae & Roesing brewery. The total capacity is about 270,000 barrels. The purchase will be stocked and floated on this and the English market. These sales give what is supposed to be English capital the control of the Chicago brewery.

Back to the White House.—WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The president arrived at the White House at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Cape May. The president's family have gone to Cresco, Pa., where they will spend the early part of September. The president will probably go to Cresco in about a week.

Republican Convention in the Twelfth District.

RECONVENES AT GALLIPOLIS.

Fifteen Ballots Taken, but No Change from the Two Hundred and Nine Ballots Taken at Ironton Last June. Other Ohio Items.

GALLIPOLIS, O., Aug. 29.—The Twelfth district congressional convention which met at Ironton in June but failed to nominate a candidate after balloting 209 times, reconvened here yesterday with the old officers in the chair and the same candidates. Fifteen ballots were taken before adjournment for dinner without a change from the unvarying 209 cast at the preceding session.

Grosvener has Athens and Meigs counties with 77 votes. Thompson has Scioto and Gallia counties with 71 votes, and Enoch has Lawrence county with 40 votes. All the delegations are full. Each of the trio claim to be confident of ultimate success, but produce no figures. Some of the Lawrence delegates say that much of the bitter feeling entertained against Thompson has been overcome since the adjournment, while the Enoch men say that he has sufficient strength in Scioto and Gallia to compass his nomination when the break comes.

Grosvener's friends claim strength in every delegation, and that when the fight narrows down to two men their candidate will go through with a whirl. No one anticipates a nomination here to-day and many fear another prolonged deadlock. The feeling is strongly against dark horses, and some one of the three candidates will certainly be nominated.

Man Blown to Pieces.—FINDLAY, O., Aug. 29.—George M. Strubb, formerly of Olean, N. Y., in the employ of the High Explosive company, of Lima, was literally blown to pieces by the explosion of a nitro glycerine can in his wagon near here yesterday afternoon. But a small portion of his body was found. His two horses were reduced to shreds of flesh and the wagon thrown into an adjoining field in small pieces.

Providing a Position.—CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 29.—Word has been received here that Mr. Burton, of Ohio, has introduced in the house of congress a joint resolution providing for the appointment of James Barnett, of this city, a member of the board of managers of the National home for disabled volunteer soldiers.

A NEW AND BIG SCHEME.—Morris' Slaughter-Houses to Be Built on Both Ocean Coasts.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—A new enterprise, involving $1,000,000, has been entered into by Nelson Morris, the packer. The new scheme is the establishment of slaughter and packing houses, as well as stock yards, at the seaboard east and west.

Monday the Interstate Stock Yard company—the name of the new organization—filed articles with the state department at Trenton, N. J., with a capital of $1,000,000. The new company will at once begin building houses in New Jersey, where all the meats for foreign export across the Atlantic will be slaughtered.

Heretofore this trade has been supplied by Morris & Company, from Chicago, the cattle being slaughtered here and shipped to refrigerators across the seas. It is known that difficulties with the men employed at the stock yards here have had a great deal to do with the establishing of slaughter houses on the coast.

In San Francisco Morris will build slaughter houses, canning establishments and stockyards. This will protect his western export trade. These houses will reduce the loss by a strike at any one point to a minimum, and it is likely that Morris will build houses at other points on the coast. The object of the new departure is also to extend the dressed beef trade to fields not yet opened up. The Oriental capitals and the many islands of the Pacific ocean have heretofore been strangers to the American dressed beef industry, and it is intended to introduce the dressed meats in that territory. The new venture does not mean that Morris will curtail his Chicago business.

A Fight with Rogues.—New York, Aug. 29.—Charles Gilpin, assignee of the Glanorgan iron works, of Philadelphia, has brought suit against William J. McCall and several others, to recover $22,000. The suit grows out of a defalcation of Charles B. Wigton, former treasurer of the company, and it is claimed the defendants received this money from Wigton. The greater part of the money received by Wigton was spent in gambling and the assignee of the iron works has brought action against Phil Daly and a number of other prominent gambling house proprietors.

Squirrel Hunter Badly Injured.—COLUMBUS, Ind., Aug. 29.—Alfred Sweeney, aged 24 years, while squirrel hunting, had his right eye put out and his head and face badly powdered, burned by an accidental explosion of a shell which he was placing in his gun. It was first thought that he could not recover, but now since retained consciousness a sufficient amount to explain how the accident occurred.

One More Victim.—DOWNTOWN, Aug. 29.—B. M. Maxim, who was injured in the Quincy accident, died here yesterday.

RUNNING RECORD BROKEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Yesterday was the last day of the meeting at Monmouth park. The weather was pleasant and the track fast. The feature of the day was Salvator's race against time. He has smashed the record for a mile made at Louisville May 24, 1877, by Ten Broeck of 1:39 3/4. He was brought on the track against the time race, and in company with Rosetta was given his warning-up gallop. Then there was a short delay and finally Salvator appeared, followed by Rosetta and Monmouth who went to act as pace makers.

The first pace maker carried him at a rapid pace to the end of the stretch, where he was joined by Rosetta. She helped him along, he running easily in the meanwhile until the last furlongs were reached, when Bergen sat down to ride, and he passed by the winning post like a steam engine. For a few moments there was silence, then 1:35 1/2 was hung up, and cheer after cheer rent the air. The fractional time was: Quarter, 0:29 3/4; one-half, 0:41 1/2; three-quarters, 0:40 1/2; mile, 1:35 1/2.

Another Record Broken.—MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 29.—A Tribune Independence, Iowa, special says: At the races here yesterday was the 3:18 trot, in 2:17, 2:18 3/4 and 2:18. Margaret B. made the three fastest consecutive heats on record. Roy Wilkes went against his own time, 2:12 1/2, the pacing stallion record of the world, which he lowered 3 1/2 seconds. Time by quarters, 31 1/4, 1:03 1/2, 1:35 3/4, 2:09.

House and Senate Proceedings.—WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—In the house yesterday the decision of the speaker as to the right of way of the land bill was sustained, 180 to 46, and the bill was passed, 180 to 31, the clerk counting a quorum. After further personal explanations in regard to the Cannon resolution, directed against the filibusterers, the eight-hour law claim bill was taken up and discussed to the end of the morning hour. The bill to constitute eight hours a day's work for laborers and mechanics on government work was amended and passed.

In the senate the tariff bill was considered further and sixty paragraphs disposed of.

Serious Manaway Accident.—LINCOLN, Ill., Aug. 29.—While out riding Fred Gehlbach's horse became unmanageable and seriously injured five persons. Mrs. Philip Koontz is expected to die from her injuries. A small daughter of Gehlbach's is crippled for life. Rosa Koontz, Lulu Koontz and Gehlbach were badly hurt.

England Now Wants Information.—NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—J. Henneker Heaton, member of parliament, of England, who arrived here yesterday, visited Postmaster Vancott with a view of getting up the postal system in the United States. Mr. Heaton will visit Washington, California and Canada.

IN ARCTIC ICE.

The Rough Experience of Vessels in the Greenland Trade.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—The bark Salina, Capt. Peterson, and Florine, Capt. Jansen, the first two of the Greenland traders to arrive this season, came into port badly damaged.

The Salina was damaged during a most thrilling voyage, having been caught in a terrific southeast hurricane on April 28 while imprisoned in an ice field.

Her crew suffered intensely from cold and fatigue. The vessel bears every evidence of her struggles with the ice, although she is especially constructed for arctic voyaging.

"We set sail from Salles D'Olonne, France, on March 26," said Capt. Peterson, "and since that time until our arrival off the Delaware caper on Sunday, I have been under terrible strain. I have made sixteen voyages to Greenland, but never saw such ice, nor did I ever experience such tempestuous weather."

With the opening of the amusement season next week, there will be a renewal of the many wishes for a new opera house. There is neither harm nor hope in wishing.

FINDLAY and Upper Sandusky are running on each other, through the newspapers, on the merits of their oil fields. When we remember Upper Sandusky's hard luck in search for treasures underneath our sympathies incline in her behalf. The Findlay Republican should go to lashing Lima and let the inoffensive but noisy Wyandots alone.

A notable feature of county politics in all directions this fall is the lively scramble that is made for nominations for probate judge. Even in sleepy old Morrow county there were seven candidates for the nomination, and it required fifty-four ballots to make a choice. We note that our brilliant friend ex-Mayor Garver, of Mt. Gilead, was in the race for fifty-one heats, and then gracefully withdrew to retain his good looks for some future canvass. This is not irony, Mr. Garver. We even hope you may be a congressman some day, and there is a chance, for Mt. Gilead has no "Misher Duncan" any more.

A Thrifty and Crafty Duke.

The Duke of Edinburgh (thirty) went all the way from London to Edinburgh last spring to open the exhibition, and after his return he sent in a bill of expenses for the exhibition people to pay. Among other items was a charge of $1,000 for a special train, whereupon it was remonstrated that the duke did not travel in a special train. "That's true," said the duke, "but I was entitled to one, and even if I didn't take it you should be willing to pay me the cost of one." Well, now, maybe the frugal Scotchmen who are running that exhibition aren't just too mad for any use.—Cor. Chicago News.

Bank Robbed by a Woman.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 29.—A Tribune special from Spokane Falls, Wash., says: A bold bank robbery perpetrated by a woman, is the talk of the town. Tuesday a beautiful and well attired lady stepped into the Exchange National bank and cashed a draft for $2,500 drawn on a Little Rock bank. She was identified by a prominent lady. It was soon discovered that the draft had been raised from $25. The plot was planned by the woman's lover. Neither have been seen since. The woman called herself Mrs. Gault.

A number of those who have friends buried in the Claridon cemetery met and cleaned up the ground and filled up their graves. Others should follow their example.

Mr. Henry Garvin has improved some since his last writing, but N. C. Mitchell is as helpless as ever.

Mr. O. Martin and wife, of Zanesville, Ohio, spent last week with Mr. Jacob Houser's family.

Dr. C. G. Owens is at home, called here by his father's sickness.

A Cheap Summer Outfit.

The big bridge is the coolest place in the two cities upon a hot night, yet very few persons cross it on the promenade after midnight. Those who do have a delightful walk, and one that is bound to provoke sleep. Several months ago a Brooklyn school teacher had a very obstinate attack of insomnia, which would not yield to drugs or the mental exercises suggested for the relief of the disease. A newspaper man advised her to take bridge at night in moderate doses. For six weeks she spent an hour on the bridge each night before going to bed. She attracted the attention of the police before she got through, but she conquered the insomnia, and it has not returned.

It is not an unusual sight to see well dressed men nodding or sound asleep on the seats around the towers or along the promenade at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. The police do not seem to disturb them, and a nap up there is said to be one of the most refreshing things in the world. An entire family strolled across the bridge from Brooklyn and back again between 3 and 4 o'clock the other morning. The father carried a babe in his arms and two children walked with the mother. They were all neatly dressed, and looked as if they had come out of hot sleeping rooms to get a breath of fresh pure air.—New York Times.

Cooking Eggs on Hot Sidewalks.

Two treasury clerks were looking out of a window of the north front of the building in Washington upon the smooth pavement that, unprotected from the sun, becomes hot enough to almost blister your feet through the soles of your shoes.

"That pavement is hot enough to fry eggs," said one clerk.

"Dish," said the other.

"I bet you that it is."

A few minutes later, when lunch hour arrived, the two men stood out on the pavement, where the temperature overhead was about 105. One of them had an egg in his hand. Holding it close to the pavement he clipped it open with a knife, and let the contents fall upon the heated flagstone. There was a little sizzle, and the albumen began to grow white and hard.

"What did I tell you?" said the triumphant clerk, and then the two men went and cooled themselves.—Washington Letter.

A Fortune to Litigation.

Jean Thiery, a rich merchant and ship owner in the Rhine provinces, died in 1876, leaving a fortune of 50,000 Louis d'or in Paris and 800,000 thalers in the Venice mint. His heirs for some unknown reason did not draw the money from the depository in Venice, so at the end of the last century Napoleon found it still untouched and appropriated it to the use of his army. For the last thirty years the descendants of Thiery have been trying to find a way of recovering the 800,000 thalers with interest. Recently they all met in Cologne, and resolved to send their lawyers to Paris to move the French government to pay over an indemnity. It was said that the French chambers had already considered their claims and advised the government to pay them.—Paris Letter.

Exciting Chicken Stealing.

Chicken thieves raided the henroost of a farmer near Belleville, N. Y., early the other morning. Just after the thieves got to work a heavy log in front of the coops dropped and exploded a big torpedo. The farmer was up and after the two thieves in a few seconds. He chased them to the Second river. They jumped in and started to swim across, and he followed. In the middle of the stream he caught one of the men. The other swam back and hit him in the face. Stunned for a moment he released his man and sank. When he came to the surface he had recovered from the blow, but the fugitives were beyond reach.

Small Motors.

The economy of small electric motors for industrial purposes is shown in a shoe factory in Brockton, Mass., where for the last year and a half a twenty-five horse power motor has been running the machinery. This is being replaced with three motors of fifteen, ten and five horse power respectively, and a saving of six horse power is looked for from the change. The electric power company that furnishes the current agrees to charge less for the current for the three small motors than it did for the one large one.—New Orleans Picayune.

Typesetting Machines for Big Dailies.

Early in the autumn The Sun, The Times, The World and other New York dailies are to begin the use of typesetting machines. It is also announced that the printer of The Century Magazine is to have his typesetting done by machinery. A syndicate of book publishers have also made arrangements to put fifty or a hundred typesetting machines in a co-operative office, where all the body matter of cheap publications issued in New York will be turned out.—New York Letter.

Killing Impudent Blue Grass.

This is just the season when the amateur gardener is enraged to find that the blue grass he planted in the spring is forcing itself up between the bricks around the lawn in spite of all he can do. The way he can prevent it is to wash the bricks with salt water or a strong solution of soda. Cheap, simple and powerful.—New York Journal.

Another Sufferer.

BISLE NOTES.

In the persecutions of A. D. 38 special effort was made to destroy the books of the Christians. All who had them or knew of them were required to bring them forth to be burned or turn informers.

The old sailors of the South sea islands were much amused when copies of the Bible were first given to them. One old native picked up his Bible and said, "My brethren and sisters, this is my resolve, the dust shall never cover my Bible, the moth shall never eat it, the mildew shall never rot it. My light! my joy!"—Christian Intelligencer.

HIS BABY FRIENDS.

The Pathetic Story Which the Bachelor Club Was Told.

"Every day as I come down town," said a bachelor club man, "there is a certain door yard I look into, or rather used to—I don't know. The two prettiest children I ever saw in my life, I think, lived there. Little things they were, then, five or six years old—fat, pudgy little fellows. Margery was just a step higher than he. It was funny to see the motherly way she had. I used to see them playing keep-house, and it was always Margery who would 'pretend' she was the mamma. Well, sir, it used to do my bachelor heart good to see them. I remember how I learned their names. It was just as I was passing by, when the front door opened and a sweet faced woman called out, 'George! Max!—come in now and let mamma fix you up and we'll go visit grandma.'"

"In a minute. Dis as soon as we dit is ple fixed."

"Well, it got so that they came to know me, and they used to strike me for cigarette pictures regularly. I used to look forward to meeting them every day. Maybe you know how hungry a man gets for a little of the simplicity of child life now and again. It was just about the latter part of April I was called away, to be gone about two weeks. If you remember, diphtheria was raging then, and many a little white hearse went glimmering by."

"The first day after I returned you may be sure I looked at the cottage where I had so often seen the little children playing. It was silent now. The blinds were closed. There was none of the ringing laughter and nobody shouting. 'Dit off, de tars is topped.' My baby friends were gone."

"Dend?" asked somebody, breaking the hush.

"No; moved away."—Chicago Herald.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

TWO WOMEN PREACHERS.

Rev. Phoebe Hanaford and Rev. Antoinette Blackwell.

(Special Correspondence.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—The Rev. Phoebe Hanaford was born on the island of Nantucket in 1820. Her father was Capt. George W. Collins, a descendant of Tristram Shandy, one of the original purchasers of Nantucket, and she is also descended from Dr. Hays.

She studied theology under the Rev. Amos A. Phelps, an Episcopal clergyman of Nantucket, and when she was 17 years of age she delivered her first sermon. Her husband, Dr. Hanaford, when she was 21, which was followed by the birth of a child, postponed her professional career, although she continued to prepare herself for it, and it was not until she was 37 years of age that she began regular ministerial work. She was ordained as pastor of the First Universalist church at Hingham, Mass., and in a short time accepted a call to Jersey City at a salary of $2,000 a year.

Mrs. Hanaford has preached throughout New England, and has lectured and some of the southern states. She has written fifteen books and has been a constant contributor to different papers and periodicals. One of her books, "Daughters of America," has reached a circulation of 60,000 copies. She has for many years been an earnest laborer for equal suffrage.

Mrs. Hanaford is the first woman who ever acted as chaplain of a legislative body. In 1870 and 1872 she acted in that capacity first in the house of representatives and afterward in the senate of Connecticut.

For many years she has been an officer of the Society of New York city, a member of the New England Woman's club and of the Women's Christian Temperance union. Mrs. Hanaford's last work is "The Heart of a Nation," which is just published.

For more than forty years Mrs. Blackwell has been prominently connected with those movements inaugurated to secure for women the best educational opportunities as well as the franchise. She is first woman distinguished as having been the first woman ordained as a Christian minister and for her versatile mind and substantial accomplishments.

Mrs. Blackwell was born in Henrietta, Monroe county, N. Y., in 1825. When she was 15, she began to teach school winters, and when she was 19 years of age she determined to go to the college at Oberlin, O., to finish her education. While there she taught in the lower departments and thus defrayed the expenses of her college course, while she completed the prescribed course in Greek and Hebrew in vacation time. She was graduated from Oberlin in 1847 and afterward received from that institution the A. M. degree.

After finishing a course in theology at Oberlin Mrs. Blackwell lectured on different reforms and preached whenever and wherever an opportunity offered, without regard to sect. In 1853 she was ordained pastor of a Congregational church at South Butler, Wayne county, N. Y.

While lecturing and preaching Mrs. Blackwell has always done more or less literary work. Her series of sketches "Sketches of Our Social System," published in the New York Tribune, attracted wide attention, and was afterward published in book form. Her books "Sex Throughout Nature," "The Physical Basis of Immortality" and other works have all had a bearing on the questions to which she has given her attention since she began public work. Her latest work is "Religion as Founded Upon Natural Demonstration Independent of Revelation."

Mrs. Blackwell is the mother of five children and has had a particularly happy married life. While they were students at Oberlin Lucy Stone and Mrs. Blackwell became close friends, and from then until the present time the friendship has continued.

REV. ANTOINETTE BROWN BLACKWELL. They married brothers who were in sympathy with their views, and for more than forty years they have worked together for the franchise for women and other reforms. Mrs. Stone never took the name of Blackwell, as she believes that every woman should retain her own name as well as her independent individuality.

ANTOINETTE VAN HOLSEN.

Points About Immigrants. New York, Aug. 25.—It is a noticeable feature of the German immigration this year that nearly all the young men are healthy and fine looking, and in most instances belong to the skilled trades. Their exodus is due to the high cost of living at home and the increased burdens of military service.

It has been noticed that of the thousands of immigrants who belong to the Greek Catholic faith, hardly 5 per cent. profess that religion after being here a few years. Much of this change is due to the efforts of the Roman Catholic church, which has missionaries whose duty it is to follow up and convert the heterodox foreigners. The missionaries are chosen from the ranks which supply the emigrants, and include Poles, Russians, Greeks, Armenians and Slav. They work very hard, and display a zeal and energy seldom witnessed on the part of American ministers of any denomination. A small portion of Greek Catholics are converted to Protestantism, while the majority become agnostics or irreligious.

America's Theatrical Army.

The estimate of the total number of people earning their daily bread from theatrical performances must be somewhat changed this year. It was said a few years back that these numbered 40,000, but last year nearly 1,500 foreign actors came to America, and this season will bring even a greater number, not counting a perfect flock of variety people from England and the continent who will next season make the United States their happy hunting ground. In the past two years besides of young women have been sent on the stage through the dramatic schools, one of these alone, it is said, furnishing 200 new made actresses that actually found employment. During this time, although newcomers are plenty from all sources, but few have, comparatively speaking, joined "the great majority" or been retired; so, taking "one consideration with another," the professional family at work in the 4,000 theatres and halls throughout the country when the next season is at its height will number not less than 50,000. It is said that England has a dramatic family of nearly 60,000, the number being larger than ours from the reason of the greater number of stock companies and few number of traveling companies sent kiting through the provinces. They know nothing of the 25,000 miles or more of railroading or its expense of an American company en route from ocean to ocean and from lake to gulf perhaps in one season.—Stage News.

Dug His Own Grave.

There was a strange funeral at the Trappist abbey, Gethsemane, near New Hope, Ky., recently. Father Benedict, the abbot and one of the founders, was buried in a grave dug by himself as his last resting place. He was buried without coffin or shroud, wrapped simply in his monastic robes, with the capote drawn over his face to protect it from the clouds. The ante-interment ceremonies were unique and solemn. Two brother Trappists, relieved by two others at regular intervals, chanted the psalms of David over his remains continually from the moment of his death until the interment twenty-four hours later. Father Benedict, among other French pilgrims, founded Gethsemane in 1848, and was the second abbot. In the world he was M. Berger, of a leading French family. He will be succeeded by Father Edward, or more properly Count Edward de Bourbon, a French nobleman, who left his native land for political reasons in 1860.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cheating Bucole Citizens.

A man with a new plan of campaign has been swindling farmers in Kennebec county. He came round a few weeks ago representing himself as the agent of a farmers' supply company that proposed to sell to farmers at wholesale rates. As the goods were not to be paid for until received many agreed to take them. On the appointed day a carload of flour, molasses, coffee and other goods ordered arrived. One barrel of flour stood open for inspection, and a better quality of that article it would be useless to desire. The buyers deemed no further explanation necessary, but loaded up, paid their money and drove home. But alas! when they inspected their purchases they were not like the decoy barrel, but hardly fit to offer to the pigs. One man is said to be out $70 by the transaction.—Waterville (Me.) Sentinel.

Some Unique Dressing Stunts.

A man who has just returned from Europe brought with him two sets of dressing stunts that show forth a new idea. One set, for himself, was of turquoises, each stud consisting of a single stone set in just the narrowest rim of gold. There are two pairs of sleeve buttons—one large and one small—small studs for the bosom, two collar buttons, and, lastly, a ring set with one magnificent stone.

The other set consisted of the same number of buttons and of a ring, but instead of the turquoise moonstones were used, there being in both sets as little gold visible as possible—just enough to carry the stones successfully.—New York Evening Sun.

An exciting scene was witnessed on Hillswick, in Shetland. A large shoal of whales was observed sporting in the bay, and many boats were speedily manned and put off. After much trouble the whales were nearly all driven ashore or killed, the total catch being estimated at nearly 180. Some of the whales were killed in deep water and sank, but twenty came to the surface next morning and were secured.

At Americus, Ga., as the workmen commenced their labors on the roof of the furniture factory, which is three stories high, a huge rattlesnake was discovered coiled on the highest point of the building. The snake was soon killed. Just how he got into his elevated position is not easily understood, but it is possible that he may have been concealed in one of the rolls of roof tin.

N. A. McDavid, of Fellowship, Fla., carved out a "rebus" on the end of an orange cane which translated is the name of President Harrison. On one end of the handle is the head of a hare, near the center is an eye, then a sun. Putting them together the symbols spell Harrison. The cane is elegantly finished in oil and has been sent to the president by C. P. Haycraft.

A single bale of cotton auctioned on the Board of Trade in Chicago Friday netted $2,084.75. The high price realized was due to the fact that the proceeds were to go to an orphan asylum. Each successful bidder, after capturing the bale, returned it to the auctioneer for another sale, the process being continued until the sum named had been reached.

Some time ago a Vienna butcher was accused of murdering his wife, and the facts in the case being clear he was condemned. Now a new trial has been ordered, as indisputable evidence has been secured that during the former trial two members of the jury were fast asleep. A true case of handgrip-eyed justice.

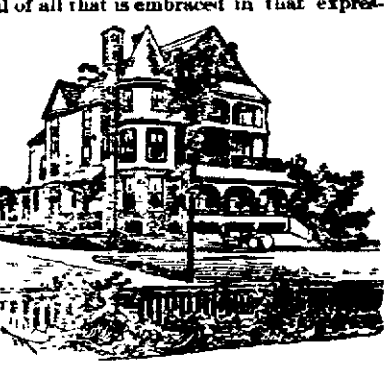

W. J. ARKELL'S HOME.

Here is located the home of one of New York's busiest men, W. J. Arkell, proprietor and publisher of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper and The Judge. The journey to and from the city to Canajoharie, a distance of 200 miles, is made with rigorous regularity once a week, and Saturday and Sunday finds Mr. Arkell with his family, one of the happiest of men in the happiest of homes.

All houses are not homes, but his is typical of all that is embraced in that expression.

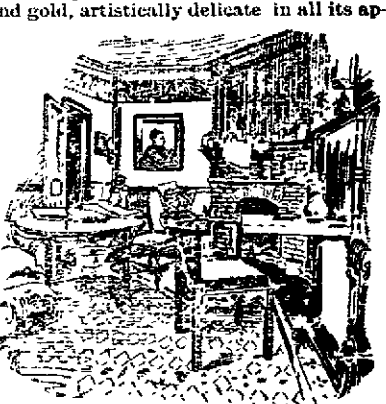

RESIDENCE OF W. J. ARKELL.

sive English word—home. It is located in his native village, and on the lot in which he ran and romped among the cedars in his boyhood days.

The elevation gives it character rather than boldness, and its quaint architecture savors of the modern English or Elizabethan style. The interior, in its modest height of ceiling and general plan of building, carries out the ideas which the exterior suggests. An exquisite stained glass window, reminding one of tropical splendor in butterfly and cactus bloom, and a daintily decorated blue and gold ceiling, claims your first attention on entering.

Decorator and upholsterer have not had undisturbed sway in this home. You recognize in the dainty little conceits which meet you at every turn a woman's presence, and an individuality presents itself "without an introduction" in the person of the lady who originated and superintended this part of the work, and who bears the honored titles of wife and hostess. Through her good taste wealth does not stare at you and impress you with the chasm which lies between it and comfort, but rather it has been made to add to homeliness (to use this word in its original meaning) a touch of gratitude and content.

The first or ground floor embraces hall, reception room, drawing, music and dining rooms, with well arranged culinary departments at the rear. The dining room is finished in oak, and has a massive sideboard and table in the same wood. The hall is nearly square, with a large fireplace and colonial mantel. The broad stairway is lighted by a mosaic glass window in blue and gold. The cosy fire screen, the dainty little table set with fine porcelain, and by its side the swining tea kettle, suggests the cheer which welcomes you. The reception room, charming in white and gold, artistically delicate in all its appointments, is the one place the master of the house lays no claim upon, for strictly speaking it is "my lady's paradise"—no other room is too good to have a romp in with the children and Major, the big mastiff. The whole house, with this one room excepted, is his, is yours, if you chance to visit him.

W. J. ARKELL'S DEN.

Mr. Arkell's library is in no sense a workshop; on the second floor and adjoining the family rooms, it is only a quiet spot in which to write a letter or take a nap. Business is Mr. Arkell's forte, but that is done in the city; relaxation from care is the thing he seeks at his home, and true to Bible prophecy he always welcomed in right good fellowship. Mr. Arkell is fond of art, and pictures are in all the rooms. In manner somewhat brusque, he wins you by his confidence and holds you by his uprightness.

FRANCES M. SMITH.

Some Marriage Customs.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The Greeks and French appear to me to be the most grasping and shameless in the matter of dowry, the Germans show the least pretense of sentiment, while the Russian takes a high ground altogether. The French cover their avariciousness with flowery sentiment where they can, but they always mean business. One Frenchman told a young lady who was very rich while he was poor: "Do not fear. We shall be happy. I love you too much to allow your wealth and my poverty to humiliate me, and we will be thus always on the same footing." No matter how ardent the suit of a Frenchman of a certain sort it cools very rapidly when he finds there is to be no dowry.

Just how base and unworthy such a man is I leave people to judge who have read the stories of the miseries and shame of American girls who have been unfortunate enough to marry such men. The more noble the men profess to be just so much higher price they set upon themselves.

I know less about the Italians, not having remained long enough in their country to gain a real knowledge; but if common report and other experience is to be believed much the same state of affairs exists there, and it certainly is about the same among the Jewish people. They have to give dowries with their daughters.

In all the foreign countries it is a fixed custom, even here in England, that only those who are more or less shown here, and the dowry is general; secured to the wife and her heirs. And in Iran there is sometimes marriage I believe where the wife's dowry is secured to her, but I think that is rarely done, as it nearly always leads to quarrels and trouble, for the husband regards it as his right to have all the money.

The Turks may be unprovoked, but they have more true manliness about them in this respect than any other of the European nations, and they honestly do love, cherish and protect their wives as something too sacred even to talk about.

M. D.

John Ball and His Gun.

Secretary Proctor has received a present of a new Enfield rifle from the English government as a sample of the style of arm now in use in the British service. It is handsomely inlaid in a polished wooden box, with silver plates and corners, and lined with blue velvet. It is of the latest magazine pattern, thirty caliber, and weighs about ten pounds. The action is exceedingly strong and positive, the breech mechanism being thoroughly automatic. The magazine is a sheet iron case half an inch thick and about four inches square, fitting to the under side of the lock.

A gate shuts it off at the will of the operator, so that the gun can be used either as magazine or a single firing arm. It is provided with a novelty in the way of a long range sight designed to cover distances from 1,800 to 3,500 yards, but the ordinary sight is not considered as fine as that in use on the American Springfield rifle. The cartridges are shaped somewhat after the design of the famous Lebel cartridge, the leaden ball being encased in a thin steel sheet for the purpose of preventing the distortion of the bullet.—Washington Star.

An Italian's Ingenuity.

An Italian on the river bank has solved the problem of giving his children an outing with the least possible exertion to himself. He places his three children in a baby carriage, to the handle of which a rope about twenty feet long is tied. The bank behind the house has a gentle decline, so that a brisk push from the father sends the carryall flying down the grade. When the water's edge is reached the vehicle's flight is checked by a cord. But the most remarkable part of the contrivance is the goat which draws the contrivance back up the inclined backyard. The animal is made to trot through a long hall from one end of the house to the other. Thus the man can sit inside the rear outside door of the hallway, away from the sun's rays, steer the goat by a well directed kick, while at the same time the little ones are enjoying a delightful toboggan slide amid the refreshing breeze wafted across the stream.—Springfield Republican.

Bitten by a Moccasin.

John Courter, of Manatee, Fla., was bitten on the heel by a moccasin snake. He was walking past Howard & Kennedy's pond, and as he was stepping over some grass the snake struck him, and hung on so that he had to pull him loose. Courter felt pains shoot over him, and started for home, over a mile away. He became sick and was obliged to lie down, but he got up again and went home. When he got there his body was swollen, his throat nearly even with his chin, his eyes nearly shut, and he could hardly speak. Fortunately the boys had been instructed what to do. They gave him a dose of ammonia, saturated the wounds with it, and sent for Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Abel and other neighbors. They gave him all the whisky they could find with ammonia in it, and got up a reaction. Then they applied turpentine and ammonia until he was out of danger and able to get up.—Exchange.

Queer Place for a Tree.

"One of the most unique sights I have ever seen on my travels," said Arthur Thomas, of New York, "is the old court house in Greencastle, Ind. I was in the town the other day, and my attention was called to a full grown tree. Now, the curious thing about this tree was that it didn't grow on terra firma, but on the tower of the court house. The tree sprouted years ago from a crevice in the bricks of the tower, and it developed year after year, until now it is a foot or more in circumference at the trunk. It is one of the most curious tree growths I have seen anywhere. It will have to go soon, however, for the county is going to construct a new court house. It seems a pity that it cannot be preserved, for it is a fine specimen of erratic tree growth.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

A Dog That Devours Hard Cash.

Have you ever gone across the inlet with a yachting party and seen Mr. J. D. Smith's shaggy haired dog? He is the most extraordinary shaggy haired dog that you will ever see. He eats hard cash. "Billy, Billy; now then." "That is what you say, and you flip him a five cent piece, and he gulps it down like a morsel of meat. Of course everybody who goes over there in a sailing party flips him five cents for the fun of seeing him swallow it, and they swear to me that on Wednesday he ate $5.30, all nickels.—Atlantic City Letter.

An Instrument of Torture.

At a picnic of the Union choir at Deacon Curtis' farm, an old piano which stood in the parlor attracted much attention from its antiquity, having been manufactured in 1740—150 years ago. It has six legs, with drawers in front, and is the property of one of Mr. Curtis' brothers, Mr. Frank Putnam. As it was played upon by several of the young ladies, peals of laughter greeted its dulcet (?) tones, and it was unanimously decided that even Mr. Charles Jennings' good musician that he is—could hardly keep in tune with its variable harmony.—Marlboro (Mass.) Enterprise.

That Alaska Find.

An American officer in Alaska has rescued a bright Indian boy from torture, and proposes to take the lad to San Francisco, and there make of him either a lawyer or a missionary. This shows a very level head. If the boy turns out to be of the poor and pious sort make him a missionary, but if he shows a desire to be the first native born Alaskan to go to congress educate him for the bar.—Detroit Free Press.

Growing Potatoes in Her Pocket.

An Auburn woman is said to have hung up a calico wrapper in the pocket of which was a potato, a year ago. She did not use the wrapper till one day last week, when she discovered a whole hill of potatoes in her pocket. There were seven or eight perfect little tubers.—Kennebec Journal.

UNAPPRECIATED PHILANTHROPY.

He Wanted to Go About Doing Good, but Was Foiled.

"I will detain you only a moment, ma'am," said a greasy looking tramp to the lady who came to the door of a house in the suburb the other day in answer to his ring. "I am the inventor of a process for the deodorization of boiled cabbage."

"A process for what?" "For deodorizing the nutritious but not ambrosial cabbage. The invention, madam, has cost me much mental labor, and I have expended hundreds of dollars in perfecting it. I am not mistaken, I think," he continued, sniffing the air in a dispassionate, judicial kind of way, "in surmising that you are cooking cabbage in your kitchen at this moment?"

"You are not."

"I am seldom mistaken in the odor of cabbage. Now, as I was about to say, although this process of mine for the removal or rather prevention of the peculiar fragrance given forth by the cabbage in the process of cooking has cost me heavily, yet I am not a monopolist. I have no wish to deprive mankind of the benefit of the discovery. For a mere plateful of that cabbage, ma'am," he said, wiping his mouth softly with the back of his hand, "I will impart to you the secret whereby you can boil this justly celebrated vegetable all day without filling your house with the odor."

"I think not. I don't want your secret."

"Possibly, ma'am," he said suggestively, "you enjoy the fragrance."

"I do."

"Ah—um!" he mused, "some persons do. It will surprise you doubtless to learn that I am passionately fond of it myself. My experiments on deodorization have not been pursued from a selfish motive," he added with dignity, "but with the idea of benefiting others. Perhaps, madam, as it seems impossible for us to put this matter on the basis of a business transaction, you may see your way clear to permitting me to test that cabbage to the extent of half a plateful anyhow?"

"I do not."

"Then have you any objections to my remaining here a few moments and enjoying the smell of that cabbage?"

"I have. If you don't go away I'll set the dog on you."

The tough looking caller put his greasy hat on one side of his head and strode down the steps with an air of insulted majesty. "When you see me again," he said, "in all probability I shall be at the head of a gigantic cabbage trust."—Chicago Tribune.

Strange Happenings.

A young tourist in the White mountains, after being sunstruck at the foot of Mount Washington, was carried to the summit, and froze to death before he could be brought to.

There is a rattlesnake up on Lake Champlain that can play "Sweet Violets" on his rattle in a way that fills the xylophone with an envy that will not die.

Lightning struck a dude in Newport one day last week, and ever since recovered he has been sporting page after page of Herbert Spencer. The curious part of this is that before the stroke he had never read anything but London Punch and The Sporting Times.

A trout two inches long and weighing ten pounds was caught on Lake Saranac yesterday. Investigation showed that the particular pool in which he lurked was fed almost entirely by water from an iron spring.

A Boston girl who went bathing at Asbury Park on Saturday was carried out beyond her depth, and was nearly drowned. This is particularly interesting, when we consider the tremendous draught of the average Boston girl.—Puck.

A Safe Skipper.

Old Lady (at Tampa Bay).—My daughters want to go sailing. Can you swim? Yacht Skipper.—No, mum. Old Lady.—My goodness! What could you do if anything should happen? Yacht Skipper.—Please, mum, when the man wot does the sailin' can't swim he's mighty careful not to let anything happen.—Good News.

Slight Covering.

"Why didn't you speak to me when I passed you on the street this afternoon, Mr. Washington?" said Belle Pepperton. "I—aw—I guess I must have been wrapped in thought."

"Indeed! And weren't you afraid of taking cold?"—Washington Post.

On a Business Basis.

"It was a brave act, young man," said the grateful father with deep feeling. "At the peril of your life you rushed into the burning building and saved my daughter. How can I ever repay you?"

"Would a couple of dollars be too much?" suggested the brave rescuer.—Chicago Tribune.

An Absent Minded Man.

Bessie Bookworm.—Oh, I never mind what papa says—except when he is away from home. Dick Danglebo.—Ah, yes; I have always understood that the professor was an absent minded man.—Burlington Free Press.

The Married Man's Definition.

Batcheller.—Ned, how would you define a love letter? Benedict.—A love letter is a thing that ten years afterward you generally wish you hadn't written.—Somerville Journal.

More Than They Had Caught.

"I've caught cold twice this week," remarked a detective. "You always were a lucky fellow," said one of his fellow officers.—Washington Post.

One or the Other.

Undesirable Suitor.—And then, you know, love is blind. She (sweetly).—He must be, or he's an awful fool.—Life.

A Fair Offer.

"What will you take to shoot that dog of mine?"

"A quarter."

"Tain't worth a quarter."

"Well, what will you give?"

"I'll give you the dog."—Munsey's Weekly.

Sure Forethought.

Proprietor of Pucking House (to keeper of adjacent hotel).—Jones, a party of about fifty persons will take dinner with you this afternoon. They are inspecting my establishment.

Landlord.—What portion of it are they visiting?

Proprietor.—The beef killing and hog slaughtering departments.

An Illustrated Quotation.

"HELP WANTED"—MALE.

—Texas Siftings.

Born That Way.

Friend.—Madam, you have not heard from your husband since he went out in the wild west, have you?

Wife.—No; John has not written for a long time.

Friend.—It is my painful duty to tell you that he has been hanged for horse stealing. Some ranchmen caught him in the act and strung him up.

Wife.—I am not surprised. John was always high strung.—America.

An Extravagant Man.

Inconceivable Widow (whose husband has committed suicide).—John was an extravagant man. That was his one fault.

Friend.—I never observed it in him.

Widow.—But you didn't know him as well as I did. His extravagance was the ruin of his family. Why, he actually bought a costly silver mounted revolver to kill himself with.—Yankee Blade.

A Sure Cure.

"Ye'll have to be very careful about the raisin' o' that b'y av yours, Mrs. Flinnerly. It's a very hasty disposition he has."

"Thurs he yes, but I have a way fer curin' 'im av that."

"An' how?"

"I've got 'im a place as a missinger b'y."—Washington Post.

Barbarous.

Boss of the Shop (to applicant for a job).—Yes, I want another barber. Have you had much experience?

Applicant.—I've shaved and cut hair in every city between here and Australia.

"Where are you from?"

"Eastern Africa. I'm a Zanzibarber."—Chicago Tribune.

And the Hopes Will Break, You Know.

"This is great fall weather we're having," remarked one department clerk to another.

"Fall weather?"

"Yes; every girl I know has a hammock swung somewhere around."—Washington Post.

A Gentleman in Thief's Disguise.

"He was the most gentlemanly highwayman I ever encountered."

"In what way?"

"He stole $100 in bills from me, and then in a spirit of generosity paid me $5 for my watch."—Harper's Bazar.

A Misunderstanding.

Professor (despairingly to stupid class).—Alas, you're one too many for me! Jack Dullwitz (just waking up).—Professor, may I be excused?

Professor.—Oh, don't flatter yourself; you are not the one.—Philadelphia Press.

Who Wouldn't?

"Birdie kissed me last evening."

The Teachers' Institute.

One hundred and sixty teachers were present at the institute Thursday and Friday and all were greatly interested in the educational work in progress there during this session.

Dr. Ellis lectured on Literature and History and, as heretofore, received much favorable comment from all. He took much pains to make his subject clear to everyone and the institute is to be congratulated on getting such an able worker as one of their leading instructors.

Prof. Hufford, of LaRue, gave many interesting points in Mathematics and Grammar, and likewise received the praise of the teachers.

In the evening Prof. Powell delivered an interesting lecture, graphically displaying the results of education on civilization. His address was listened to with the greatest of attention and many were the favorable remarks heard from all who listened to his able address.

The evening's session closed with one of those social and informal reunions which are so much relished by all teachers. The large High School room was crowded with a merry crowd of teachers, citizens and those interested in educational matters, and the time was given up to sociability and greatly enjoyed.

Narrow Escape from Drowning.

A two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Morrow, living in East Marion, narrowly escaped drowning just before noon today. The child had escaped the attention of its mother a short time and went out doors. It was soon missed and a search instituted. Mrs. Morris ran to the cistern, which was open, and there discovered a portion of the little one's dress above the water, by which she rescued it, apparently more dead than alive. Dr. Adams was called, and after strenuous efforts lasting a couple hours the child was resuscitated, and it is thought to be out of danger.
